Negroes and the Public Schools in Washington.

There was a special meeting of the School Board last evening at the Franklin School building to consider the matter of the removal of the child of Professor Gregory, a colored teacher, from the public schools in Washington county, designated by law for white children.

Mr. Warner stated that he had ordered the removal of the child not upon the ground of color, but upon that of policy. He would have the child be a disturbing element in the school. Thirty-one pupils had been already removed by their parents, more threatened to follow, and the dissolution or serious crippling of the institution seemed unavoidable unless this course were taken.

He would have the child be a disturbing element in the school. Thirty-one pupils had been already removed by their parents, more threatened to follow, and the dissolution or serious crippling of the institution seemed unavoidable unless this course were taken.

Dr. Cragin offered a short motion, the substance of which was to the effect that the Board sustain Trustee Warner's action in ordering the removal of the child, the ground of "policy." Mr. Brooks (colored) made a spicy speech, referring to the numerous questions of a like character which have arisen from time to time in years gone by, and warmly commended the Board for manifesting a cowardly spirit in this attempt to do what he called a "policy" game which every member knew himself was on account of color. He asked that the Board come out manfully and show its hand, and not sneak behind a "policy" game.

The discussion of his grew rather warm. Each member of the Board vented his opinions. Mr. Brooks made a second speech, in which he said he would like to see settled just then and for good the difficult question of "who's white and who's black." He also took occasion to say words to the effect that the very many of the best and wealthiest families have colored blood running in their veins under the working of the "American bleaching process," and that it would be highly interesting to fix the line of demarcation between the two races, and the chair in favor of Dr. Cragin, and offered the following as a substitute to Dr. Cragin's motion, with the consent of the latter:

Troubles of a Runaway Couple.

William Crane and Mary Bayne, a runaway couple from Culpeper county, arrived in Alexandria on Monday night last, with money bag. The couple were accompanied by a young man, who stated that he made it the business of his life to see couples of this kind, alluding to the above-named Mr. Crane and Miss Bayne, through their troubles. The young couple stated that they had lots of trouble in this matter, but that there was no ex-tena in Culpeper county that could drag them apart now; that they had walked fourteen miles to get to the railroad depot, and that they intended to be made one "as sure as guns." After reporting refreshment in the boarding-house in this city, the party left for Washington, where, falling to find the City Hall in time to secure the marriage license, they had to remain all night. The next evening, however, they returned to this city, and the groom, with his face all scratched and bruised, stated that he had been "done," and said he felt like he could "put to flight a thousand old cads"; that he was so happy he felt like he could fly. At night the newly-wedded pair were serenaded by the boarders in the house where they were stopping, and the groom returned the thanks, stating that it was for young men to procreate in matrimonial affairs; that there was more bliss in one day of married life than in a thousand years of single existence. Seeing a sandy-complexioned young man in the assembly of musicians, the groom said: "No red-haired man ought to live alone. A man with red hair was made for comradship and happiness, and he would advise all, but especially the young man with golden locks, to go and do as he, the groom, had done." The next morning the bride party left for the city, and the groom still enthusiastic over what he called "his good luck."—Alexandria Gazette.

Murdered for Doing His Duty.

COLUMBIA, S. C., September 28.—Last night a murder of a gentleman, a sensation, occurred near Ridgeway, in Fairfield county, the murderer and his victim being respectable farmers. Eli Briggman and his brother Thomas were deputed to make a levy on a piece of land belonging to Dr. Samuel Sykes, and a few days since were discharged. The two Briggmans were severely denounced by Sykes for making the levy, and he threatened to get even with them.

A Lunatic's Leap.

RICHMOND, IND., September 28.—A United States Senate clerk named George Ames, whose father was a son of the late Bishop Ames, of the Methodist Church, and whose mother is a sister of United States Senator Booth, jumped from a third-story window of the Grand Hotel to-night and struck on his head, sustaining injuries that will probably prove fatal. He stopped here on his way to Indianapolis, on a visit to his sister, and has been considered so insane that he would have been sent to an asylum hospital. The leap was made to escape the officers who were seeking him, who had him in custody. He is a cousin of the man named Ames who died in a Baltimore mad-house on Monday, and who was also a grandson of the Bishop. The digestive organs weakened and worn out by using cathartic medicines restored by using Brown's Iron Bitters.

Starving in a Light-House.

QUEBEC, September 28.—Another report has been brought from Bird-Rock Light, in the Gulf. Telegraphic connection has been interrupted or broken and the light-keepers' boat smashed, thus cutting off communication with the main land and all means for procuring provisions. The party on the rock, numbering eleven persons, had been without bread for twelve days. A passing steamer supplied the famished party with a quantity of food sufficient for their pressing wants, and relief will be at once forwarded.

AN order has been issued in the State Treasurer in favor of Deputy Sheriff Willford, of Cooke county, Tenn., who arrested and brought through here last week the murderer of the Muske family, of Allegheny, some months ago. Rhodes, the murderer, was turned over to the Allegheny authorities to await examination. The amount of the reward was $250, besides expenses incurred in effecting the delivery of the prisoner.
